

Challenges and Options for Studying Child Outcomes in the Context of QRIS

Kimberly Boller • Jim Elicker • Tamara Halle • Louisa Tarullo

October 24, 2012

Child Care Policy Research Consortium

Bethesda, MD

Session Overview

- What are the key questions and challenges related to studying children's outcomes in the context of QRIS? (Kim)
- What can we learn from a state example of studying child outcomes in a QRIS? (Jim)
- What are the key considerations for studying children's outcomes in QRIS a responsible and appropriate way? (Tamara)

Questions (Part 1)

- What are the challenges of tracking children's exposure to quality/different settings?
- What are the key messages for states on how design and implementation of studies that include child outcomes?
- What do researchers need to keep in mind?

Questions (Part 2)

- Could we move toward a common core of standards for QRIS? What would this look like?
- What research is needed to move us toward a common core (within state, across states)? What is the best approach to getting us there?